Capital improvements outlined in town budget

The village of Coal City is projecting over $12.3 million in expenditures in the coming year, and 35.2 percent of the proposed budget is earmarked for capital

After weeks of discussion among the Village Board and department leaders, trustees have placed on a file a tentative fiscal year 2018 budget. The document takes into consideration annual and planned expenses, as well as long- and short-term

In his notes to the board, village administrator Matt Fritz spoke about the impact the June 2015 tornado continues to have on village finances

While the long-term cost is known to be $6.3 million, the effects of the capital expenditure are becoming apparent as the Village Board considered its annual tax levy in December. To date, the levy has increased from approximately $185,000 upwards to about $300,000 in the current fiscal year. This amount shall climb to approximately $800,000 within two years' time. This longterm expense, planned to be paid off by the 2029 levy year, is squeezing available capital and causing short-term debt to increase. In order to afford the operational expenditures to fund the repayment of this debt, current payments are increasing as more replacement infrastructure is necessary," Fritz said. In addition to the village's outstanding debt, it must also find the funds to meet

Board members have budgeted for the hiring of an additional police patrol officer, however the hiring will only take place if the village is awarded a Community Oriented Policing Services (COPS) grant.

'To meet the staffing needs of the community and continue to transition the department to younger officers, receiving 75 percent of an additional officer over a threeyear period would augment the transfer of knowledge from the existing senior officers," Fritz said.

The police department's $2.27 million budget also includes costs associated with dispatching services, records management, new communications equipment for the officers, technology upgrades to provide additional video storage space and the hir-

It's construction season

Local road projects get underway

BY ANN GILL

Road construction season is shaping up to a busy one locally as projects get underway to improve a portion of Route 113 through Diamond and the replacement of a bridge over the Kankakee River.

Constructioncrews have mobilized to begin the long awaited projects.

Diamond Mayor Terry Kernc reported on Monday that the Route 113 reconstruction project slated to get underway this week was initially delayed due to rain.

"Keep in mind that weather plays a role," the mayor said.

The project will widen Route 113 from the entrance of Sunshine Garden Center east to Frontage Road allowing for the installation of a turn lane. Additionally, the project will include the extension of a bike path on the north side of the road and complete necessary drainage improvements.

According to the mayor, the work is expected to start at the Claypool Drainage ditch on the east end of the roadway and move west.

We have launched!

After months of planning your digital paper gets an update

BY ERIC FISHER

When the Free Press Newspapers launched a news website almost 10 years ago, we wanted to make significant changes within the first couple of weeks.

That's what happens when technology changes for newspaper people focused more on showing their work in ink on paper.

But our website served its purpose. It brought our readers breaking news and photos of two tornadoes, five state championships, a police shooting, road closures, Friday night football wins, structure fires and so

Our site suddenly leveled the playing field with big league newspapers because instead of waiting until Wednesday to bring you the news in print, we could break it as soon as it happened.

Combined with social media, our audience suddenly grew. Within five months from launch, we delighted when we topped 10,000 pages views in one week. When a tornado struck Coal City and Diamond on November 17, 2014, we had over 35,000 page views in 24 hours after posting photos of the damage.

We more than doubled that readership in 24 hours on a fateful day in June one year later. We couldn't believe a tornado had hit Coal City again, this time even harder, but we had the photos to prove it and our readers wanted to see them. Posting them shattered our earlier milestone and even news stations in Chicago were sharing our work.

Still, with all that traffic and the satisfaction that people were wanting local news and wanting it now, we wanted to give our readers something better.

That day has come.

The Free Press Newspapers has launched a revamped news website. For the past three months we've tweaked its design, added new features and

According to Fritz, the Illinois Department of Natural Resources and the Illinois Park and Recreation Association are interested in a joint project to restore the site to a usable park space.

Additionally, administrator indicated the village has been approached by an investor interested in partnering on restoration of the property to prepare the area as a trail head for the adjacent bike path under the ComEd transmission lines.

The town's economic development fund includes an $86,405 debt payment on the Union Pacific rail spur that was put in to service the proposed Inland Logistics Port. The payment will extend the total village cost for the project to $423,875.

Two dead after call of shots fired

Braidwood Police investigate weekend shooting deaths

BY MARNEY SIMON STAFF WRITER

BRAIDWOOD — A call to the police on Sunday night of shots fired ended with two dead bodies and a death investigation.

The call came in around 9:15 p.m. on Sunday, April 2. The caller complained of possible shots fired at a home in the 200 block of Parkview Lane, near the center of

Inside the home, police found two

Those victims were identified as Joseph O. Burgess, 35, of Chicago, and James A. Benson, 25, a resident of the Parkview Lang home. The victims were identified as halfbrothers. They were both shot once.

A .357 revolver was recovered at the scene, along with spent cartridges.

According to the office of Will County Coroner Patrick K. O'Neil, both victims were both pronounced dead at 10:29 p.m. The coroner's office described the shooting as a domestic incident, with both men suffering a single gunshot wound to the head.

Braidwood Police Chief Nick Ficarello said the investigation is ongoing.

"We are looking at murder-suicide," Ficarello said. "Obviously the coroner's office makes the final determination in this circumstance, but the Braidwood police are investigating the murder-suicide angle on this case. Witness statements are corroborating that information."

Autopsies were completed on April 3. The final cause and manner of death will be determined at a later date, pending police, autopsy, and toxicology reports.

Neighbors said the occupants of the small white house on Parkview Lane are quiet and pleasant people, and that they were shocked to see about a dozen squad cars and two ambulances show up at the scene on Sunday night.

Witnesses told police, however, that Burgess and Benson had been seen arguing off and on for most of the evening. One family member and an acquaintance of the family were in the home at the time of the shoot-

SUDOKU - Here's how it works:

Soduko puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle.

Coalers drop tough one to Plainfield

The Coal City varsity baseball team put up a fight against Plainfield East on Saturday, but wound up losing the 11-inning marathon, 1-0.

The game was a strong display of what the Coalers (5-3) are capable of, as they held Plainfield, who won the 4A Regional last year, to only one run. The opposition has only one loss so far, losing to Providence Catholic (3 time state champs) by one run.

"It was a great game to watch," said Coaler coach Jerry McDowell. Harseim was just outstanding today against a quality opponent. He really hit his spots all day."

Harseim put in eight innings of shutout work, as the defense also put on a show behind him. Harseim, along with the defense, let up only five hits, as he struck out five and walked two.

Jake Brnca wound up receiving the loss, putting in three innings of relief. He surrendered one earned run off two hits, walked five and struck out four. Dan Phillips led the team at the plate, going 2-for-2, while Zack Nolan and Blake Harseim each added one hit.

The Coaler offense managing four hits in the game. After eight games, the Coalers have only seven extra base hits.

"Our defense had a really good week, but our confidence on the offensive side Herscher.' is really bad right now," McDowell added. "We have some upper classmen who are struggling at the plate, and we need them to start hitting. We have a tough week again with Joliet West, Catholic

The Joliet West game on Monday was cancelled, but rescheduled was Wednesday.

The Coalers will return home on Friday to face Herscher.

Bloomington 3 It was an exciting game last week as the Coalers collected a one-run win over Bloomington thanks to Keegan Gagliardo in the seventh inning.

Gagliardo made contact with the ball in the fifth inning with a two-out, tworun single as the Coalers wound up with a 3-0 lead.

Blooming came fighting back with their own threerun inning in the sixth, tying the game up heading into the final frame. In the seventh, Connor Best reached base on an error and would eventually score the game winner.

Brnca recorded a sacri-fice fly, pushing Best across for the run to take the 4-3

From there, the Coalers were able to hang on for their fifth win of the season. Freshman pitcher Payton Hutchings threw lights-out ball in his 5.1

innings of work. He allowed just two hits, and struck out 14 through his shutout work. Justin Dabulskis came on for one-third of an inning, letting up three earned runs off two hits and walked two. Sean Micetich came in for relief on the mound, hurling the remaining 1.1 innings. He struck out two batters faced, while letting up no hits.

"Payton Hutchings was just unreal, and Sean Micetich came in and threw the ball well to clinch it," said McDowell. "We still only collected four hits for the second game in a row, but we are hitting in the clutch. This is a big win early in the season over a quality team.

Jeremy Unger ready for first year

BY BRENT SUMNER STAFF WRITER

Coal City tennis fans may have seen a familiar face on the sidelines during the season opener on Tuesday, as Jeremy Unger enters his first year as head coach

Unger, who has been a lifelong resident of Coal City, took over for Matt Leman this year, He served as the assistant coach last year.

"I have always been around here," Unger said. "I grew up in Coal City, went to Coal City schools and teach at Coal City.'

Unger was a Coaler in his high school years, and even played tennis for the program. He attended St. Francis University where he continued his tennis career at that level.

In college, Unger pursued a degree in education, and is now a math teach at the high school. "I knew in high school that I wanted to be a teacher, I had excellent teachers in school," he said. "As far as coaching, no, this is all kind of new to me."

Unger admitted he didn't always want to go in the coaching direction, yet he is enjoying the new experience, and is quickly learning. It helps that he spent a year under the direction of Leman, who built quite a reputation with the Coaler program, for both boys and girls tennis.

"I spent a year under Matt, and he is a great coach and did a good job," Unger added. "He is still giving me advice and helping me out.'

So far, Unger has spent some time acclimating to the head coaching position, noting that there are a lot more duties with the job compared to being the assis-

However, he is taking a lot from it, and is enjoying his time at the head of the program.

"Head coach has a lot more involved, a lot more strategy and thinking, and it keeps me busy. Keeps me on my toes," he said. "In an aspect similar to teaching, you get the joy of helping the young out though. Helping them understand the game, how it works, and you get them to understand competiton.'

The Coal City community is in full support of Unger as he enters his first season, and wish him the best of luck moving forward. After all, Unger devotes himself fully to his profes-

Varsity Club learns about adversity from guest speaker

The Coal City Varsity Club was recently treated to an annual presentation, where the group has a former or current professional athlete come in and speak with the students.

This year, the club had the pleasure of meeting Blake Geoffrion, a former professional hockey player, who also became the first fourth-generation player in the league's history, after his father (Dan), grandfather (Bernie) and great-grandfa-ther (Howie Morenz) all played.

"The presentation was really good," said Lauren Deter, varsity club sponsor. "The base of his talk was about overcoming adversity. Just everything he faced, and how he overcame them.

Blake took the time to talk to the students about the challenges he faced coming up in a tough sport.

He started through a prep school, wound up making the varsity team, but would eventually get moved back down to junior varsity.

He went on to talk about the challenges he faced in making the junior Olympic team, not scoring a goal in the first couple months, and eventually overcoming that. "He talked about college and everything," said Deter.

"His grades and attitude. He didn't always have the most positive attitude, but he overcame it."

Blake also emphasized to the Coalers the importance of an education, as he attended the University of

THE COAL CITY Varsity Club hosted Blake Geoffrion, a former NHL player, the week before spring break, as he came in and spoke about the benefits and challenges of becoming a professional athlete. After the presentation, varsity club officers Leah Campos (left) and Kyle Cowherd presented him with some Coaler gear.

"Blake's story was pretty cool, because he went to college and finished college before heading to the majors. He hit on the importance of education. He had a cousin that was drafted and didn't go to college, and he wound up getting hurt. But he didn't have the degree to fall back on.'

Deter added that to sum up Blake's overall message would be to say, "Things in life are going to happen. It is how you overcome those obstacles and keep going." One of Blake's biggest obstacles came in the NHL.

He wound up getting drafted in 2006 by the come more opportunities Nashville Predators, and though, as Blake was then

In 2012, he was traded to the Montreal Canadians, and while playing for the minor league affiliate, the Hamilton Bulldogs, he wound up facing his biggest decision of his life.

While playing for the AHL team, Blake would receive a hit from a defenseman, and through the hit would also receive a skate upside the head. The accident caused a huge cut above his left ear, and after being rushed to the hospital, would eventually be found to cause a depressed skull fracture.

After the injury, Blake considered retirement, and would eventually do so in 2013, at the age of 25. Through challenges

After two seasons with the Blue Jackets, he moved into management, being selected as the assistant general manager of Columbus' AHL affiliate, the Lake Erie Monsters. "The more the students hear that message of overcoming adversity, the better it is for them," said Deter, about the presentation. "They really look forward to the presentations, and it is one of the highlights of the club for the year. The varsity club will Focus on quality ingredients for a simply delicious meal

osting an elegant Easter brunch is easy when you build a menu around exceptional ingredients. Your dishes don't have to be overly complicated; simple dishes are perfect for the occasion when you let stand-out flavors steal the show.

Brunch calls for a combination of light and savory fare, and an ingredient like Jarlsberg Brand Cheese lets you go either way. Best known for its classic wedge, this nutty, mild cheese is also available sliced and shredded – perfect for adding a distinctive taste to nearly any indulgent dish you can imagine.

Quiche is a brunch staple, and no variation of this classic is complete without cheese - in this case, a rich, creamy layering of Jarlsberg's unmistakable flavor does

For a lighter bite, try these Cheesy, Crispy Smashed Potatoes from Chef George Duran, host of TLC's "Ultimate Cake Off" and Food Network's "Ham on the Street." You could go a more decadent route with Duran's Brown Sugar Ham and Cheese Sticky Buns, or even appeal to kids of all ages with his Spicy Tater Tot Breakfast Muffins. Explore more recipes for a simply

The Navy Grog could make you groggy the method of distillation, Has anyone ever asked if you were feeling a little How did you "groggy"? answer?

The term "groggy" is yet another drinking slang term that has roots in naval history. Grog was a cocktail of rum, citrus and water served aboard ships in the 1700's. The Grog had two primary purposes: prevent scurvy, and to make the stagnant water aboard the ship more palatable. If you consumed too much grog, you became intoxicated, or some would say that you were "groggy." These days the term is used to apply to someone who is sleepy rather than someone who is intoxicated. The Grog was given a new lease on life during the tiki revivial of the 1940's and 1950's, and became known as the Navy Grog.

The Navy Grog never achieved the notoriety of the Mai Tai, the Zombie, or other iconic tiki drinks, but it did have a loyal fan in the White

Like many of its tiki counterparts, the Navy Grog uses blends of multiple rums, each with unique flavor notes.

Trader Vic, Donn Beach and other masterminds of the tiki era, made their living finding the perfect balance of rum for each drink served in their establishments.

These original blends were closely guarded secrets that were known only to the owner of the establishment and the bartenders.

Therefore, a Mai Tai at Trader Vic's was not going to taste the same as Donn's Mai Tai.

Rum is divided into two general category, light and dark. Dark rum is sometimes revered to as "aged rum" in various recipes. Light rum is typically unaged, or aged for less than three years. Locating the different rums needed for a given recipe can become difficult when the recipe calls for Puerto Rican, Jamaican or Trinidad rum.

Don't panic, the country of origin is printed on the every rum label. Each rum producing region will have unique flavor profiles due to blending and aging used in production. example, some countries use molasses as opposed to cane sugar as a base for distillation. There is a good chance that you will like a rum from a particular region if you like other rums from that region. Avoid spiced rum in classic tiki drinks even though spiced rum is dark in color. Many, if not most, spiced rums are low-grade rums with heavy doses of added artificial flavoring and color. A quick glance at the recipe for the Navy Grog may be intimidating. It shouldn't

This is your chance to put three different types of rum in your home bar that can be used in many other recipes, and will give you the opportunities to share your newly acquired knowledge of rum producing regions with your guests.

You can find the darkercolored demerara sugar at your local grocery store under the Domino brand. Steer clear of pink or cans 100 percent juice unsweetened grapefruit grapefruit juice in my home bar at all Allspice dram is a responsibly

Jamaican rum-based liqueur infused with all spice berries. Availability of allspice dram could be hit or miss in your area, the brand that you are most likely to find is St. Elizabeth's from Jamaica.

At some point club soda was added to the Navy Grog, and if you want to add a hint of sparkle to the drink, feel free to add an ounce.

I would put the Navy Grog up there with the Mai Tai, and I think a heck of a lot of a good Mai Tai. The Navy Grog is built in a blender and served in a chilled double old-fashioned glass. Combine in blender:

Add 3/4 oz fresh lime

Add 3/4 oz grapefruit juice.

Add 1/4 oz demerara simple syrup. Add 1/4 oz allspice

Add 1 oz aged Trinidad

Add 1 oz aged Jamaican rum. Add 1 oz aged demerara

Add 1 cup crushed ice then blend for 3 seconds.

Serve chilled double old-fashioned glass.

How working in retirement can affect your Social Security benefits

SAVVY SENIOR

Jim Miller

Dear Savvy Senior, I'm considering retiring later this year and starting my Social Security benefits, but would also like to work part time. Will this affect my benefits, and if so, how much?

Ready to Retire

You can collect Social Security retirement benefits and work at the same time, but depending on how old you are and how much you earn, some or all of your benefits could be temporarily withheld. Here's what you should know.

Dear Ready,

Working rules

Social Security says that if you're under your full retirement age, which is 66 if you were born between 1943 and 1954, or 66 and 2 months if you were born in 1955, and are collecting benefits, then you can earn up to $16,920 in 2017 without jeopardizing any of your Social Security if you don't reach your full retirement age this year.

But if you earn more than the $16,920 limit, you'll lose $1 in benefits for every $2 over that amount.

In the year you reach your full retirement age, a less stringent rule applies. If that happens in 2017, you can earn up to $44,880 from January to the month of your birthday with no penalty. But if you earn more than $44,880 during that time, you'll lose $1 in benefits for every $3 over that limit. And once your birthday passes, you can earn any amount by working without your benefits being reduced at all. Wages, bonuses, commissions and vacation pay all count toward the income limits, but pensions, annuities, investment earnings, interest, capital gains and government or military retirement benefits do not. To figure out how much your specific earnings will affect your benefits, see the Social Security Retirement Earnings Test Calculator

SSA.gov/OACT/COLA/RTeffect.html.

It's also important to know that if you do lose some or all of your Social Security benefits because of the earning limits, they aren't lost forever. When you reach full retirement age, your benefits will be recalculated to a higher amount to make up for what was withheld.

For details and examples of how this is calculated, see SSA.gov/planners/retire/whileworking2.html.

For more information on how working can affect your Social Security benefits see SSA.gov/planners/retire/whileworking.html, or call the Social Security at 410-965-2039 and ask to receive a free copy of publication number 05-10069, "How Work Affects Your Benefits." Tax factor

In addition to the Social Security rules, you need to factor in Uncle Sam too. Because working increases your income, it might make your Social Security benefits taxable.

Here's how it works. If the sum of your adjusted gross income, nontaxable interest, and half of your Social Security benefits is between $25,000 and $34,000 for individuals ($32,000 and $44,000 for couples), you have to pay tax on up to 50 percent of your bene-

Above $34,000 ($44,000 for couples), you could pay on up to 85 percent, which is the highest portion of Social Security that is taxable. About a third of all people who get Social Security have to pay income taxes on For information, call the IRS at 800-829-

3676 and ask them to mail you a free copy of publication 915 "Social Security and Equivalent Railroad Retirement Benefits," or you can see it online at IRS.gov/pub/irspdf/p915.pdf. In addition to the federal government, 13 states - Colorado, Connecticut, Kansas, Minnesota, Missouri, Montana, Nebraska, New Mexico, North Dakota, Rhode Island, Utah, Vermont and West Virginia - tax Social Security benefits to some extent too. If you live in one of these states, you'll need to check with your state tax agency for

Reason to be ashamed

SHADOW LAKES—People should look up political.com and find out about the OFA which is the Organization For Action and another organization called Invisible. These have been started by Barack Obama who is very upset and has been agitating and organizing around the country for riots going on with Republican town hall meetings. If you have watched any of this on television it is the liberal Democrats who have so much hatred for the Republicans winning the White House, the Senate and the House because they do want to bring America back to what it once was from what Obama destroyed. And if you would look into political.com you can read some of this. For these people who I have seen riot on television I would be ashamed to be a

Dan Hill

It would help

WILMINGTON-The story about the elderly person getting scammed out of $8,000 is sad to read. While we've lived here a long time and still feel fairly safe, as an elderly couple we wonder if we're going to be the next victim. While we like living in a small town and feeling safe, it's all the outside world that is a threat and that's due to the internet and older people not being safeguarded by their adult children. If you have an elderly parent who lives alone, check in with the regularly. Ask them if they've talked with any strangers recently and if they have spent any money. It never hurts to check with them often because it's easy to become a victim the older you get.

No more signs

WILMINGTON—Thank goodness the election is coming to an end this week. I am so sick of looking at all the yard signs that were put up by those running for mayor and school board. Now we get to watch and see who are the sore losers by not going around and taking their signs down.

Just don't care

WILMINGTON-A television movie had a scene in which two women were arguing. One said, "But you don't get it, you don't get it. You just killed someone." And the other responded, "No, you don't get it. I don't care." Many abortion supporters know abortion kills children. They just don't care.

Still on ballot

ESSEX—Only in Illinois can you get arrested as a township clerk for writing yourself checks from taxpayer money for $30,000 and still remain on the ballot to keep your job. The Illinois State's Attorney arrested her back in February for stealing from the township and yet her name remained on the ballot. What is she going to go, write checks from a jail cell? It's a slap to every voter in Essex Township.

No signs

ALL COMMUNITIES— When you call to put a sign in a person's yard and they say no, this means no. Stop being so pushy.

More of them

BRAIDWOOD—There are people in this town suffering from drug addiction and mental illness. I saw a guy walking near the grade school the other day and he looked like he was in a daze. He was on something and it was scary to me and my kids. He was obviously talking to himself as he walked by our car. Thank goodness I locked doors because he stopped and looked at us and said something at my daughter who was scared out of her mind. Now I'm not sure where he was from but I know he shouldn't be out on the street, especially near the school. Why aren't people like him getting help? Seems like there are more crazies these days on the streets.

Make it a crime

SHADOW LAKES—I'm calling about the opioid problem in this country and why is it not a criminal offense if parents are allowed to leave drugs that they are taking (opioid) and their children get a hold of it and they continue to take it from their parents. They become addicted and then possibly turn to crime. But if you leave a handgun laying out and your child gets a hold of it and someone gets hurt then it's a major crime. Why don't the Democrats do something about the opioid problem in this country and quit worrying about guns. After all drugs and medical mistakes kill two to three hundred thousand people a year in this country. Far more than guns ever do. Dan Hill

Gone overboard

WILMINGTON— I opened my front door to find a political letter taped to my recently painted door. That is wrong. These mayoral candidates have gone overboard with advertising. Hopefully the tape residue will be able to be removed without damage. Private property

WILMINGTON—Two of the candidates for mayor in Wilmington have no respect for a citizen's rights. I have no trespassing signs on my property and twice came home to find unsolicited political advertisements on my property. Both were placed on my door while I was not at home, making it appear that I was endorsing that person. Perhaps the city needs to amend the political sign ordnance to add that it shall be illegal to place any political advertisements on private property without the consent of the property owner.

Sounds of Spring COAL CITY—You can tell it's Spring.

Loud music coming from cars, motorcycles revving their engines, parents screaming at kids. Oh Spring time!

To the fullest extent

WESLEY TOWNSHIP-The reason there is vandalism and theft in this area is because even when the perpetrators are caught red-handed or all evidence points to them, nothing is done about it. If we are supposedly cracking down on crime then why don't we see more arrests?

Stop smear campaign

COAL CITY—Seems like Bruce Rauner is more concerned about campaigning than he is about getting our state straightened out. He's already buying TV commercials knocking the Democrats for trying to duct tap government. Seems to me that Rauner is just as much as part of the problem as the Democrats when he spends all his money on commercials bashing them. It's time they all stop their smear campaigns and get things done.

Clogged up

BRAIDWOOD—Braidwood, Coal City and Wilmington were in a contest last week for clogged curb drains. First prize goes to all three for having almost every drain blocked with leaves so the water would not drain. Springtime is here.

The Braidwood way

BRAIDWOOD—We were out of town so I'm just catching up on my reading. It was interesting reading the comparison of Braidwood, Coal City and Wilmington in regards to which ones are transparent and which ones are not. We all know it's not Braidwood. They keep everything a secret, that started with credit card charges like > buying chocolates. That's just Braidwood Keep city government secret as possible, the taxpayers don't have the right to know. How about an article comparing water and sewer rates, or comparing the police pension debt in the three towns. You know they don't put that on their websites because they don't want to show how much they're giving away.

Others should do their part

BRAIDWOOD-Read more than 20 million people across four African and Middle East countries are facing starvation according to the United Nations. This is Somalia's third famine in 25 years of civil war and anarchy. The United Nations claims it needs at least $5 billion by July to prevent catastrophe. The United States traditionally has been the largest donor to the United Nations and gives more aid to Africa than any other continent. In 2016 the United States gave more than $2 billion to the United Nations World Food Program, a quarter of their total budget. Sudan has been entrenched in civil war. Since 2013. Other continents should do their share.

Overweight for sure

WILMINGTON—How can a semi-tractor trailer come into town from River Road down Kankakee Street? The bridge over the creek has a load limit of 6 tons. A semi tractor trailer weights almost 83,000 pounds loaded. That's 71,000 pounds more that the bridge is safe to carry. Where are the police? An overweight ticket for 71,000 over would bring some much needed revenue to the city with out burdening the local citizens.

I fell for it

BRAIDWOOD-I have to admit I fell for your Donald Trump April Fools story...hook, line and sinker. I read it thinking this is unbelievable, Trump really sent a letter to the newspaper. Then someone suggested it was an April Fools story and it hit me how gullible I was. Thanks for the laugh, another reason why I love my local newspaper.

Border laws

BRAIDWOOD-Read the number of undocumented immigrants crossing the south western borders in Texas is dropping from 1,500 a day in January to 840 people a day caught stopped from entering the United States from Mexico. The border laws have been on the books for years. President Trump has ratcheted up deportations and signed executive orders to hire 15,000 new border patrol. It's time to follow the border laws. In 2014, 275,000 babies were born to parents here illegally according to Pew

Affects of immigration

BRAIDWOOD—Immigration changes a nation's culture. Fifty years ago only five percent of the United States population was foreign born. By 2010 immigrants made up 14 percent of the population and nine of 10 were coming to America from outside Europe. These Asian, African, Middle Eastern and Hispanic immigrants bring diversity to America. They forced us to revise our thinking about what it means to become Americans. Gone is the melting pot idea with its assumption that immigrants can become indistinguishable from natives. Wars have taken its toll on our native born over the years. Yet 52,000 people died of drug overdoses in 2015, more than the peak year of AIDS which took 50,000 in 1995. Drug companies helped with the AIDS problem only to help create the opioid epidemic as millions have become addicted. God bless America.

Rauner's flannel wearing thin

Governor worried more about next campaign than state's future

As the Senate's two leaders tried again to find the votes to pass their "grand bargain" last week to end the state's two-year gov-ernmental gridlock, Gov. Rauner began spending over a million dollars on two new TV ads that portray him as an every-man "duct tape' hero in the fight for Illinois' future.

"Illinois is broke and broken," Rauner says to the camera while standing in a well-kept garage and wearing a plaid flannel shirt. "And the politicians that got us into this mess, their solu-tion is this," Rauner says as he holds up a roll of duct tape. "Higher taxes," he says as he yanks out a piece of duct tape, "More spending," he says with another jerk on the roll, "No real reforms," he says as he takes one more strong pull.

Äfter decades of ignoring problems, it's time someone fixes 'em," the governor says. A list of bullet points appears on the screen in front of a line of tools neatly arranged against the garage wall as Rauner says: Our balanced budget plan freezes property taxes, caps spending, creates jobs and puts term limits on politi-

Rauner is then shown sitting on a chair in the garage. "Our plan brings real reforms to Illinois," he says as he grabs the roll of duct tape. "Their duct tape solutions won't work anymore. We will fix Illinois together."

The second, shorter ad, begins with Rauner peeling off duct tape from a piece of glass over the camera. Springfield politicians don't want you to see what they're up to," the governor begins, wearing the same flannel shirt in the same garage. "'Cuz their duct tape solutions just cover up Illinois' problems. They don't fix 'em," he says with a smile on his face. "Fix Illinois," an announcer says.

The goverpeople believe nor's firmly that they have staked out a comfortably poll-tested platform. "What we oppose, the public opposes,' a Rauner official said last week. "What we support, the public supports.' The public hates tax hikes and Rauner is gearing up for the 2018 campaign with a message that he saved the state from ruinous Democratic tax increases without his demanded jobcreating reforms, which include the above-mentioned balanced budget, property tax and state government spending freezes, term limits and other awesome stuff.

Trouble is, he's never once proposed a balanced budget and can't get anything else passed. Rauner is heading into a reelection campaign without much of anything to show for his time in office. Hence, the duct tape ads.

Team Rauner is also still opposed to whatever comes out of the Senate's negotiations because the proposals don't meet its demands.

Talks have reportedly

faltered over a "five and five" proposal raise the income tax for five years and property taxes for the same amount of time. The Senate Democrats are also still refusing to specify major budget cuts (which the governor has refused to do as well), and a dispute has developed over the latest education funding reform

Should the Senate's plan go down in flames yet again, the Democrats will undoubtedly Rauner never actually wanted a deal to begin with. They'll claim in unison that the Turnaround Agenda was, in reality, a mere ploy to achieve Rauner's result, which is the slow but very deliberate destruction of "weak" universities and social service programs and the crushing of unions and "the middle class." And they might possibly even get some backup from a clearly furious Senate Republican Leader, who lashed out at the governor and his chief of staff earlier this month for declaring through unnamed source in a newspaper article that the grand bargain was dead. Rauner will continue to counter with a campaign based on running against the Springfield "status quo," and in particular the overwhelmingly unpopular House Speaker Michael Madigan. But after over two years in office, a kabillionaire who conspicuously drops his "g's" and dons the costumes of the working class in expensive TV ads to claim he's on the common man's side may be finally be wearing thin. The governor's 58 percent job disapproval rating in the latest Paul Simon Public Policy Institute poll didn't appear out of nowhere, after all. Instead of constantly worrying about his own political future by producing vet another round of expensive TV ads far away from election day, the governor ought to find another way to improve his state's future. He has a Republican Senate Leader who is firmly committed to getting us out of this horrific ditch. Instead of undercutting her at every turn, he ought to be helping her across the finish line. Doing otherwise will only prove the Democrats' point that he doesn't really want a deal.

How old is that Mason jar? Look at the logo BY TONYA MICHALEC

SPECIAL TO THE FREE PRESS NEWSPAPERS Mason jars didn't just come out of the blue. They evolved out of necessity. generations. For mankind searched for ways to better preserve food. What eventually developed was heat-based canning, also called water bath canning. And what they learned early from failure was just the right container to withstand the heat was needed.

In the beginning cooks used whatever they could get their hands on, such as glasses or jars, and even champagne bottles. But most didn't work. Either the glass was too thin and would crack under the boiling water, or the neck was not wide enough to allow for the passage of food. Some exploded during the boiling process because little was known about proper sealing and head space.

But all this changed in 1858 when a New Jersey native filed a patent for a glass jar that stood up to the test.

John Landis Mason, inventor and tinsmith, realized that reusing jars designed for other purposes was getting everyone nowhere.

Through his own trials, he found that the container must be made of strong glass, have a wide mouth and a screw thread on the outer perimeter of the opening allowing for a metal band, or ring, to allow for a better seal due to a rim-

A milk crate filled with old Mason jars stopped The White Glove last week at Two Hounds Antiques, 202 N. Water St., Wilmington. Each of the blue-tinted glass jars were priced at $5.

Along with the logo of "Ball Perfect Mason", the quart-sized jars have small imperfections inside the glass that look like bubbles and are with numbers like "10,12,3." According to ball.com,

Ball Mason jars were made by them 26 years after Mason secured his patent. Ball, which began in 1880 as the Wooden Jacketed Can Company, was founded in Buffalo, NY by five brothers determined to corner the container making business: William, Edmund, Frank, Lucius and George Ball.

The brothers started making wood-jacketed tin cans for holding hardware store liquids like paint and kerosene before expanding to glass and tin-jacketed containers. By 1884, the company began producing home-can-

Within two years of their first batch of Mason jars, the men changed the name of their company to Ball Brothers Manufacturing Company and relocated to Munĉie, ĬN.

The business thrived, thanks to a decrease in overhead expenditures, such as the natural gas incentives offered by the city, and from the rapidly growing demand for its reliable food preserva-

Although Ball is no longer the name of the company today, production of Mason jars takes place in 45 different locations worldwide.

Little has changed with the product since Ball started rolling them out 133 years ago.

The jars can be purchased in a wide range of sizes, shapes and colors. Choices in size go from 4ounce quilted jelly jars all the way up to 64-ounce smooth glass jars that work great for whole vegetables or large batches of sauce.

Companies have stayed true to sticking with the Ball brothers' tradition of making them from clear glass, or that which is lightly tinted blue or green. Recently, Mason jars can be bought in nearly every color of the rainbow.

There is a way to identify also embossed on the bottom when a Ball mason jar was produced says Karen M. Vincent, in her article titled: "How to Date a Ball Jar."

Unfortunately, according to Vincent, none of the manufacturing companies, Ball Brothers included, stuck to any kind of routine when it came to embossing production dates into jars. And, just because a date is present, such as 1858, that does not mean that is when it was made, nor do the series of numbers featured on the underside of the

Remember, 1858 is when Mason received his patent for his design of the threaded closure. And, since many different brands used his design, many different jars were required to have his patent year on them. Back to the numbers embossed on the bottom, often shown in a set of three and separated by commas, they are called mold numbers. They say nothing about when the item was produced, but point out the position that the mold in which the jar was made attached to the glassmaking machine.

Vincent claims the best way to date Ball mason jars is by the Ball logo itself. Since they were first made, the script of the Ball logo has changed slightly after its first year, others after several decades.

In the beginning, Ball was not yet the name of the company, so the first logo on Mason jars has BBGMC, which stands for Ball Brothers Manufacturing Company. It was used for roughly two years when the plant was based in NY, circa 1885 to 1886. The second and third logo styles are the block and underscored script-styled Ball logos. Both were used between 1895 and 1896. The fourth style, which was used from 1900 to 1910, consists of a script-style Ball that appears to have a third "l", which is actually just a connected underscore, or underlining slash drawn from right to left.

From 1910 to 1923 Ball jar logos feature a lower positioned "a" and removal of loop used to connect the last "l" to the underscore. The sixth logo style was used from 1923 to 1933 and is void of both the underscore and ascender. The underscore was returned to the seventh logo style and used from 1933 until 1962. The eighth style change is still in use today and is the only logo that has a fully enclosed, loopless "B."

Prior to it, all of the other logos have had at least one loop and at least one open edge in the first letter of the brand name.

By using Vincent's points of identification, it appears that the Ball jar shown in the snapshot above was produced during the seventh wave of logo styles, making it approximately 55 to 84-years-old.

For what they are worth, it looks like in the case of antique Ball Mason jars, the bigger and the older, the better. Per popular on-line auction sites, one can expect to pay less than $1 for 5-ounce jars and up to $111 for one-updates to visitors to the Iron Bridge Trailhead. The Ranger Trailer is open from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. every Saturday and Sunday until Nov. 4, which is National March 21.

The 2017 Volunteer Ranger season started with a two-hour training session for new information rangers Midewin National Tallgrass Prairie on Tuesday,

The training curriculum was developed and the class was led by volunteers. Topics ranged from bison to native Illinois seed harvesting and planting. Each volunteer trainee received a binder with reference materials and information about entering shifts in Volgistics.

Volunteers with previexperience at Ranger Trailer shared heartfelt stories about their volunteer experiences.

Staff with Midewin and The Nature Conservancy in Illinois launched the trailer outreach last season in response to remarkable public interest in the Midewin bison herd.

The herd was introduced in 2015 as a 20-year conservation experiment. At Midewin, volunteers, partners and staff are working side-by-side, year-round, monitoring to see if the herd's grazing pattern is helping to attract a more diverse array of native Illinois prairie birds and insects.

About 1,000 people are signed up to volunteer at Midewin National Tallgrass Prairie, with a core group of some 100 who are highly involved.

"We have the best volunteers on the planet, for the planet," said Midewin Coordinator Volunteer Allison Cisneros. Cisneros is co-located with Midewin National Tallgrass Prairie Staff and works side-by-side with volunteers and staff every day.

"Hardly a day goes by when you don't see a volunteer engaged in a project here," she said.

. Volunteers are also active in the Midewin Welcome Center. The Welcome Center is open 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., Monday through Saturday through Saturday, Nov. 4. Plans will be announced for the 2017 National Bison Day program when more details are confirmed.

The Midewin Welcome Center is a good starting point where you can talk with information specialists before heading out on your experience on the prairie. Specialists sometimes have updates to share about what other visitors have seen and What is environmental justice?

Dear EarthTalk: What is meant by "environmental justice" and how is it under assault in the new Trump administration?

Mike Garner, New Orleans,

Environmental justice is defined by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) as "the fair treatment and meaningful involvement of all people regardless of race, color, national origin or income, with respect to the development, implementation and enforcement of environmental laws, regulations and

In layperson's terms, it means making sure specific groups of people don't bear a disproportionate burden from potential and existing environmental threats. Traditionally, we think of situations like the siting and construction of a pollution-spewing factory in or near a low-income minority community as an example of an environmental injus-Some recent examples ripped from the headlines include the lead contamination of the water supply of predominantly African-American Flint, MI, and the siting of the potentially hazardous Dakota Access Pipeline adjacent to sacred and ecologically sensitive Standing Rock Sioux tribal land.

"The federal government has recognized for decades that air and water quality are especially poor in low-income areas and communities of color, and some of that imbalance stems directly from government permitting decisions, such as where to allow the dumping of toxic materials," reports the Natural Resources Defense Council (NRDC), a leading environmental advocacy non-profit.

About Our Environment

Environmental justice has been a hot topic lately as it relates to who bears the brunt of climate change impacts. According to EPA research, city dwellers and the poor are among the Americans most likely to suffer from climate change.

NRDC points out that 24 to 27 percent of urban African-Âmericans, Latinos and indigenous people in the U.S. are now living below the poverty line, compared with only 13 percent of urban whites-meaning that minority groups are at the greatest risk from the heat waves, bad air, stronger storms and other negative consequences of a warming

The federal government has been working on environmental justice issues since at least 1992 when then-President George H.W. Bush created a White House office dedicated to "environmental equity.'

Bill Clinton took up the mantle when he assumed the presidency in 1994 and issued Executive Order #12898 calling for the federal government to identify and address "disproportionately high and adverse human health or environmental effects of its programs, policies and activities on minority populations and low-income populations."

Clinton's order created the Interagency Working Group on Environmental Justice to coordinate and oversee implementation of the rule across different federal agencies, and spawned the Environmental Small Justice Grants Program, which has awarded upwards of $24 million since then in funding to more than 1,400 community-based and tribal organizations working in communities facing environmental justice problems.

But that all is likely to change now that Donald Trump has proposed slashing the EPA's overall budget by $2 billion and cutting funding for environmental justice programs specifically by 78 percent, from $6.7 million to just $1.5 million.

"These cuts are a direct attack on low-income communities and communities of color everywhere who are on the front lines of toxic pollution," says NRDC's environmental justice head Al Huang. CONTACTS:
